President Hawkinson

Dr. Kenneth S. Hawkinson began his tenure as the 12th president of Kutztown University on July 1, 2015.

Since his arrival at KU, Hawkinson has established 53 initiatives for the institution, focusing on nine areas such as academic excellence, enrollment management and student success, and expanding educational opportunity and access. He also has overseen the implementation of KU's first action plan, highlighted by the identification of the university's Programs of Distinction. Hawkinson's community outreach efforts have included the establishment of "Walks with Wynnie," weekly campus walks featuring the Hawkinsons' family dog, and a new performing arts society.

Before coming to KU, Hawkinson was provost at Western Illinois University from 2012-15, where he was responsible for areas including university planning, fiscal and enrollment management, curriculum and contract negotiations.

Prior to assuming his position as provost, Hawkinson served Western Illinois for four years as associate provost and associate vice president for budget, planning and personnel, where he oversaw all aspects of academic affairs, including contract administration, summer session and curriculum. Previously, he was associate dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communication and chair of the Department of Communication.

Hawkinson began his academic career at Western Illinois as an assistant professor of communication, and later was promoted to associate, then full professor. He also was an adjunct professor in African American Studies and an instructor in the Honors Program. During his time on the faculty, he served as leader of both the Faculty Senate and the faculty union. He has published numerous articles and dozens of professional papers. His research interests and creative pursuits include storytelling, oral tradition and performance of literature.

Hawkinson earned his bachelor's degree in history from Western Illinois. He also has a Master of Arts in speech communication from the institution and holds a doctorate in speech communication/performance studies from Southern Illinois University. He was a Fulbright Scholar from 1990-91, during which he taught American studies at the University of Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso, West Africa, and conducted research in African folklore and oral tradition.

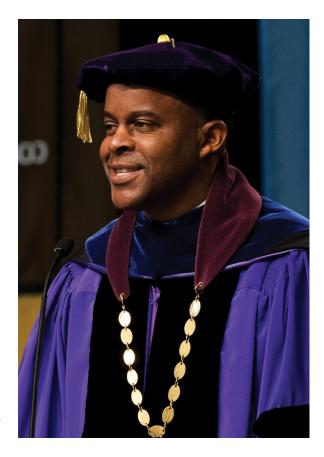

Hawkinson was in the U.S. Army for three years. After serving in the Illinois National Guard as a field artillery officer and executive officer for a field artillery battery, he joined the Army as an infantry officer. He served in Germany as a platoon leader and a weapons platoon leader, and as a public affairs officer. He also served for two years as a volunteer in the Peace Corps in Mali, West Africa.

A native of Carpentersville, Ill., Hawkinson is married to the former Ann Marie Hayes. His son, Jivan Deglise-Favre-Hawkinson, recently completed his doctoral studies in engineering at the University of Michigan. Dr. Jack Thomas was named the 11th president of Western Illinois University (WIU) in 2011, an institution that serves approximately 12,000 students through its traditional, residential four-year campus in Macomb, Ill., and its metropolitan campus in the Quad Cities/Moline, Ill. Previously, he served as WIU's provost and academic vice president.

Thomas earned a Bachelor of Arts in English from Alabama A&M University, a Master of English Education from Virginia State University, and a Ph.D. in English (Literature and Criticism) from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Prior to his tenure at WIU, Thomas served as senior vice provost for Academic Affairs and interim dean at Middle Tennessee State University. Thomas has also served in various capacities at other universities including interim president, executive vice president, associate vice president for Academic and Student Affairs, executive assistant to the president, chair of the Department of English and Modern Languages, coordinator of freshman English, and assistant track coach.

Thomas is a noted scholar and lecturer. He frequently appears as a keynote speaker, presenting his research and inspirational messages locally, nationally and internationally. His most recent publication is a book titled, "Within These Gates: Academic Work, Academic Leadership, University Life, and the Presidency." His research focuses on black males in literature. He served as the editor and founder of "Image: The Scholars Release Journal, Men and Women of Color" which showcases writers, poets, and artists.

Thomas has served as an American Council on Education Fellow, is a graduate of the Harvard Leadership Program and the Leadership Middle Tennessee Program, a Kellogg-NAFEO Fellow, and participated in the Salzburg Seminar in Salzburg, Austria. He is married to the former Linda Goldsmith and they have two sons.

Guido M. Pichini '74 was elected to a fifth consecutive term as chairman of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education's Board of Governors in July, 2015. He is the first state system university alumnus to chair the board which oversees the state system.

The 20-member Board of Governors has overall responsibility for planning and coordinating the development and operation of the state system, which is the largest provider of higher education in the commonwealth, enrolling about 110,000 students. The board establishes broad fiscal, personnel and educational policies under which the 14 state system universities operate.

Pichini is president of WSK & Associates and its related companies of Wyomissing. He is a member and former chair of the Council of Trustees at Kutztown University and the former chair of the Pennsylvania Association of Councils of Trustees, the statewide organization that comprises the trustees from all 14 state system universities.

Pichini earned a bachelor's degree in education/political science, and completed graduate studies in public administration at Kutztown. He also graduated from Wilson College with certification in the minor judiciary, attaining the highest grade in the history of Pennsylvania. He served two terms as a councilman in the Borough of Wyomissing Hills and four terms as mayor. Pichini served as a member of the Pennsylvania Workforce Investment Board and as a member of the Postsecondary Education Advisory Commission.

Pichini and his wife Susan, honorary co-chairs of the KU Sesquicentennial Celebration, reside in Wyomissing.

Honorary Westerate

Academic Regalia worn at American college exercises today goes back in its essential features to the middle ages. The oldest universities of northern Europe, such as Paris and Oxford, grew out of church schools, hence they wore clerical garb largely borrowed from the monastic dress of their day.

The head covering was developed out of the skullcap worn by the clergy in cold weather. In the universities, this skullcap acquired a point on top that gradually evolved into a tassel. In this country, it has been replaced by the familiar mortarboard, which still retains the medieval tassel.

The gown worn today is the medieval roba, and seems to have been borrowed from the habit of the Benedictine monks. Bachelors and masters could be distinguished by the simplicity or elaborateness of their gowns – the masters' gowns were often furred – and this survives today in the ornamentation found on doctoral gowns. The wide velvet borders extending down the front of the doctoral gown, the velvet chevrons on the lined bell sleeves, and the borders of most hoods, are in the color of the scholarly field of the wearer.

The hood (the medieval caputium) was originally worn over the head, and otherwise dropped onto the shoulders like a cowl. Master's degree holders wear distinctively colored hoods that signify the wearer's degree.

The University Mace, used almost exclusively at commencement exercises or other formal, ceremonial functions, is a decorative version of the weapon of the same name used in the Middle Ages, and represents the authority of the university. The new Kutztown University mace was designed by Stephen Culberson '16, a crafts major, at the request of the KU Student Government Board, and was presented to the president as a gift on behalf of all students.

The mace is made of walnut from a tree that existed on Culberson's grandfather's farm. The lathe work was performed by Culberson.

The dates noted on the mace represent the year in which the university originally received its charter and the year of the university's Sesquicentennial celebration. The crowning element atop the mace is the "keystone," which was used in the original Keystone State Normal School official seal.

Since the inception of the university, the mace has traditionally been carried by a grand marshal at official university ceremonies. The honor of grand marshal is bestowed by the president, and usually is a tenured faculty member who has attained the greatest seniority.

Quincy A.W. Rohrbach '12 President, 1934-1959

Presidential Medallions have served for centuries as remembrances of specific events or to recognize meritorious service or conduct. Medallions have also been used and worn to indicate leadership and authority.

The Kutztown University presidential medallion is worn by the university president with academic regalia at formal functions such as commencement. The medallion serves to identify the university president as the leader of a community of scholars.

The design elements of the new presidential medallion incorporate recognition of achieving university status and display the commonwealth seal. On the chain supporting the medallion are the names of all who have served the institution as either principal or president. Additionally, all preceding names of the institution - Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown State Teachers College and Kutztown State College - as well as drawings of the university's most historic buildings, are engraved.

"The medallion serves to identify the university president as the leader of a community of scholars."

Unrivaled Past

Kutztown University is currently in the midst of its Sesquicentennial Celebration, leading up to its 150th birthday in September. For a century and a half, KU has fulfilled a critical educational mission for the residents of Pennsylvania.

The university was founded as Keystone State Normal School on September 15, 1866. Keystone State Normal School's founding can be traced to the passage of the Normal School Act of 1857. Normal schools were developed to teach teachers, but more than that, they included model schools (lab schools) for the student teachers to work with actual elementary school students.

The location of a Normal School in Kutztown was not a foregone conclusion. Some favored Hamburg and Fogelsville. Kutztown, however, had an edge because of the success of earlier schools located there. In 1864, Maxatawny Seminary opened on the current site of Old Main. The following year, a new group of stockholders, interested in establishing a state normal school in Kutztown, bought land surrounding the seminary and expanded the existing building considerably.

In February 1866, the Keystone Normal School opened and would be approved to represent the third Normal School District, consisting of Berks, Lehigh and Schuylkill counties, beginning in September of that year.

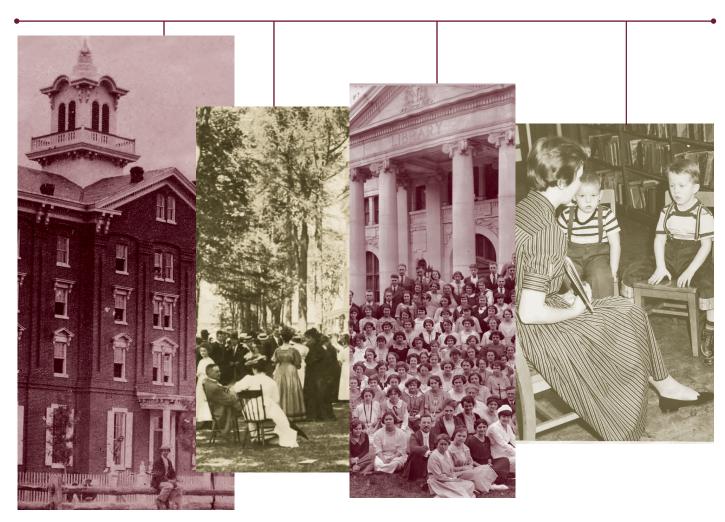

The growth of the school in its first half-century of existence centered on the expansion of Old Main. The original structures were all razed by 1895, and the current buildings constructed between 1881 and 1902.

The institution grew over the next 60 years and on May 29, 1928, became Kutztown State Teachers College, when the first four-year degrees were awarded for the first time at commencement.

The Pennsylvania General Assembly authorized the 14 state teacher colleges to become multipurpose state colleges in 1960. The next two decades featured tremendous growth for Kutztown State College, as the college burst well past its original borders. Additions to north campus included a new Sharadin Studio in 1961 and the new Rohrbach Library in 1968.

campus as well with the addition of residence halls in the 1960s. Residence life began to take shape around the green area, known as the DMZ, with women's dorms on one side, men's dorms on the other and the South Dining Hall at the end. Keystone Hall was completed in 1971.

In 1983, the Pennsylvania General Assembly recognized all 14 schools of the newly created Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education as universities. The change to a university would also bring big changes to campus: more residential facilities; expansions to existing or new academic buildings; athletic, recreational and student union renovations; several plazas; and the creation of the Pennsylvania German Cultural Heritage Center.

Over the years the KU campus has expanded to 289 acres, and today offers more than 100 programs of study throughout four colleges, as well as nearly 200 extracurricular organizations and activities.

From its early beginnings as a twoyear normal school in 1866, to a thriving state-regional university of 9,000 students, KU has emerged as a leading regional institution of higher learning - one of the most popular schools in the commonwealth.

The university has helped its students realize their dreams by preparing them for life, including providing the education necessary for stellar careers, and the groundwork to be positive contributors to society.

After nearly 150 years of serving the region, Kutztown University truly has an unrivaled past and unlimited future.

Comprising four colleges – Business, Education, Liberal Arts and Sciences, Visual and Performing Arts – Kutztown University offers a wide range of outstanding academic programs to prepare individuals for successful careers. More than 100 programs of study as well as an Honors Program, study abroad, internships, student/faculty research and living-learning communities round out the academic experience.

Located on 289 acres, the beautiful campus is adjacent to the Borough of Kutztown in Berks County, Pa. Special facilities include a modern library, 50 computer labs, art galleries and studios, a planetarium and observatory, TV production facilities and radio station, an Ecoplot, and the Pennsylvania German Cultural Heritage Center.

In 2016, enrollment at the university includes 9,000 students from nearly 40 states and nations. Approximately 41 percent of the undergraduates live on campus; the rest live at home or in nearby apartments.

Eighty-seven percent of our tenured/tenure track faculty have doctorates or terminal degrees. Kutztown boasts a favorable 20:1 student/faculty ratio.

A well-rounded program of athletic, cultural, and social events and activities satisfies nearly every interest. KU's 21 sports teams are part of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) and members of NCAA Division II.

72,500 alumni can be found across the U.S. and beyond.

Kutztown University is a member of Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education. The Board of Governors oversees the state system which includes Pennsylvania's 14 public universities. The Council of Trustees is the local governing body for Kutztown University. The Officers of Administration for the university are the president and members of the president's cabinet.

KU is accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education (MSCHE). Several academic programs are accredited by disciplinary accreditors. These are:

- Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB)
- Commission on Sport Management Accreditation (COSMA)
- Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP)
- Council on Social Work Education (CSWE)
- National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD)
- National Association of Schools of Music (NASM)
- National Council for Accreditation of Coaching Education (NCACE)
- National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE)

"Eighty-seven percent of our tenured/tenure track faculty have doctorates or terminal degrees."

Alma Mater

Where stately trees are bending
Where nature's glories shine
And loveliness unending in beauty rare combine
There rise the Kutztown towers
And there the college stands
The wellspring of our powers
The shrine our love commands

And we will ever love her
And live to spread her fame
Our lives shall add new luster
Unto her glorious name
As guardians of her new day
Our work will ever be
To labor so that she may achieve her destiny
